

Give the Job Description for an Agricultural Economist

The agriculture industry will remain an integral part of America. The people who first came to settle in America had to do agricultural farming in order to survive. The agriculture industry has grown by leaps and bounds. But now the agriculture industry is very rewarding. The agriculture jobs of today deal with the new technology to produce crops that are required in America. There are many jobs in the agricultural field. The agricultural field is having various categories of jobs. The agricultural economist is one such job that is an important category of agriculture job. The agriculture economist is the person who is responsible to handle the agricultural economy. The agriculture economist should be an expert in the field of agriculture. The job description of an agricultural economist includes that- the agricultural economist has to deal with the economy of the agriculture. He has to look after the economy of the agriculture. He has to take time to time decisions to bring about changes in the agricultural economic sector.

The agriculture in India occupied almost 80% of the contributions to the Indian Economy. The agriculture in India is one of the major sources of income. The agriculture production takes place on the farms or agriculture based industries. The agriculture production takes place depending upon the agriculture needs.